Mary Cavanaugh-Marsh Tells People What They Need To Know About Money

Mary Cavanaugh-Marsh is all about making other people shine, especially her clients. A 22 year veteran of the industry, Mary runs the Edward D. Jones office in downtown Litchfield Park.

Mary's father was a mining engineer, so she grew up throughout the US and Canada as he managed various projects. Her stops included New York, Montreal, Pittsburg, and Milwaukee, and finally ending up in the Northern California Bay Area. She attributes her strength in math to her time in Montreal where there was a strong emphasis on French. Finding herself without a knack for French, she gravitated towards math. She finished high school in Alameda, California, where she excelled in math, swimming and cross country. Her parents were from the Springfield, Illinois, area and she spent time there every summer. In fact, she still has many relatives living there.

Mary started in banking at Wells Fargo Bank while she was still in college at Cal State Hayward. Back then, banks were limited to doing business in one particular state and invested patron's money only in savings accounts. Mary also entered the financial field when there were very few women in the stockbroker role. After 12 years in banking, Mary made the jump to being a stockbroker. At that time, she still lived in the East Bay and commuted to downtown San Francisco because that was when investment

"I tell people what they need to know, not what they want to hear" Mary Cavanaugh-Marsh people were segregated into skyscrapers in downtown areas.

After some time in the Biltmore area of Phoenix, Mary ended up with Edward D. Jones on Old Litchfield Road in downtown Litchfield Park. Locating, what are now termed financial advisors, out in the community makes greater sense because of all the changes in communications and technology, a perfect fit for Mary. Mary is community oriented and great at building relationships. She continues to work with many of her clients from 20 years ago in San Francisco. Her clients include individuals and families, businesses for employer sponsored retirement plans and organizations.

(Mary Cavanaugh-Marsh,

Mary has shown a great deal of commitment to our community. She will be the next President of the Estrella Rotary Club and is a member of Gals of the West. The Gals of the West mentor high school students through programs and events. She is a serious recreational golfer and a regular in the ladies group at Palm Valley. Once a month she plays with the Working Women's Group Association. Mary is also an avid hiker/backpacker, having climbed Mt. Whitney many times. Her favorite hike is the John Muir trail in the Sierra Nevada Mountains. In addition, she loves to travel and enjoys all types of water sports. She just recently returned from a trip to Costa Rica.

The things that make Mary and her Edward D. Jones office special are her experience, her focus on client success, her good team, and her skill in providing solutions. Mary sees her role as a consultant and educator. Her approach with clients is to find out what their individual needs are first and then determine how she can help them. Mary says "I tell people what they need to know not what they want to hear." Efficiency and great customer service are important to her. She is also part of the regional leadership for Edward D. Jones, providing coaching and training for staff throughout the West Valley and beyond.

Like many other small businesses in Litchfield Park, Mary's Edward D. Jones office is part of the community. She and her team of Valerie Collier and Anne Downing, have deep relationships, and care and support for many of their clients. These are special people serving a special community. Her office can be reached at (623) 935-3138 or www.edwardjones.com.
