Old Pueblo & Mahoney Catalyst for Transforming Downtown LP

Old Pueblo owner Peter Mahoney was born in Brooklyn and moved to Arizona at age 12 from Columbus, Ohio. Peter's father worked for Western Electric, loved the heat and had an opportunity in Arizona. Peter attended Litchfield Park Elementary and Aqua Fria High School. As a youth, Peter excelled in all sports, but gravitated to tennis in the 8th grade. He had a number of scholarship offers but decided on the Air Force Academy. After less than a year there, Peter transferred to ASU. At ASU, tennis was still his passion but realized that after a semester of daily practice, he probably wasn't going to be playing matches as the team had so many great players and he needed to find a way to pay for his schooling.

After college, Peter worked in the corporate restaurant world but in 1989, he started his own litigation consulting business where he focused on multi-media presentations and videos for the courtroom. He continued his business for the next 20 years serving high-end courtroom litigation. One notable project was the trial of Charlie Keating in Tucson.

In 2001, Peter was living in Litchfield Park and saw an opportunity to open a restaurant. He was still doing litigation work. Peter and a partner started the Old Pueblo restaurant. In 2007, he opened the bar, and in 2012 he added the Park Café. He got out of litigation consulting in 2008.

Owner Peter Mahoney

Peter loves the restaurant business because no day is the same. Peter says "this business keeps me on my toes and I love meeting new people and making friends". He admits that balancing work and life are challenging in the restaurant business where he gets very few days off.

Old Pueblo serves Sonoran style Mexican food specializing with pico de gallo, carne asada, and homemade flan. Other favorites include shredded beef tacos and green chili quesadillas. Peter has sent his hot sauce and pico de gallo across the country by mail to longing customers from afar. .

Opening this summer.

Located in the old TAPS
location on Old Litchfield Road

All of Old Pueblo's recipes come from Chef Ernestina "Tina" Borquez. Tina started in the beginning with Peter and is now part-time. Two other employees remain from the original staff, and ten have been with Peter over six years, unique for the restaurant business.

Peter especially enjoys contributing to the community. He is a longtime supporter of events and programs for local schools and non-profits. Peter has also served on the Litchfield Park City Council since 2000. As a result, Peter knows many people in the community. He especially enjoys when the young adults from the community "come back" to Old Pueblo for their first drink when they turn 21.

Running a restaurant has its challenges. They are open 7 days per week, 362 days a year, closing on Christmas, Easter and Thanksgiving. The restaurant is open for food from 11:00 am to 10:00 pm. The bar is open until the last person leaves or 2:00 am.

"This business keeps me on my toes and I love meeting new people and making friends." - Old Pueblo owner Peter Mahoney

Peter's vision for the Old Pueblo has changed the feel for downtown Litchfield Park. Outdoor seating and live entertainment along Old Litchfield Road has given this area a different feel than in years past. The City now has a unique entertainment district with Old Pueblo, Park Café, Blue Sushi and the Litchfield Tap Room. The Lazy Palm Grill will open this summer in the location of the old TAPS.

Business owner, community leader, and gigantic sports fan, Peter Mahoney is another reason why Litchfield Park is a special place. If you don't already know Peter, stop in and have a delicious Mexican dish or a drink in the bar, or both.
